

Revision 2

(Units 6 to 10)

The Kite Festival

Gujarat celebrates more than 2,000 festivals every year. Uttarayan is considered as one of the biggest festivals in India. People start making kites many months before the festival.

Uttarayan is held on the day when winter starts to go and summer is about to begin. Skies are covered with colourful kites from dawn until after dark. It marks the approach of the harvest season that begins on the day of Makara Sankranti. Very skillful kite-makers and flyers are welcomed from all over the world. Kites of varied size fill the sky. It is a very colourful festival. People from many different cities in Gujarat take part in kite competitions. Food items like undhiyu, which is a mixed vegetable consisting of yam and beans, sesame seed brittle and jalebi are distributed among people.

The festival has a lot of international participants too. Malaysia, Indonesia, the USA, Japan, Italy and China are some of the famous participants who have brought unique kinds of kites to the festival.
